KREOO

Marble furniture and design complements

Designed by Marco Piva, the Tao freestanding washbasin appears as a cylindrical block of marble that is crossed vertically, in the middle, by a thin metallic brass band. Another perpendicular strip, in the same finish, crosses the first one and marks the upper part of the basin, identifying its depth. This decorative "mesh" guarantees the possibility of working with blocks of marble of smaller dimensions, even different ones, and considerably reduces the production discard. Tao is also available in a countertop version and is offered in ten different types of marble.
